DON'T MISS IT.

The Excursion to Indian Head Experimental Farm Promises to be a Success.

That the excursion to Indian Head Experimental Farm and Central Assiniboia Fair, announced for Aug. 2nd, will be a great success there is not the slightest doubt. An opportunity to visit the Experimental Farm and partake of the hospitality of the Superintendent, Mr. Angus Mackay, is a sufficient guarantee that every farmer who can possibly get away will be there. But this year there is a double attraction. The joint exhibition of the Qu'Appelle Station, Fort Qu'Appelle and Indian Head Agricultural Societies will open at the latter place on that date. This will give our farmers an opportunity of seeing what their neighbors are doing, and they will also be able to compare the products of the surrounding districts with those of the Farm.

On the same day an excursion train will be run from Moosomin and intermediate points, on which over 1,000 farmers are expected, and it is predicted that fully 6,000 people will be in attendance.

Among the special attractions there will be lacrosse and football, in which the Moose Jaw football team will participate, and it is expected that our baseball team will arrange a match for that day. McPhee's big company will hold forth both days with a tent accommodation for 3,500 people.

No farmer should miss this excursion. As the Regina "Leader" says:—"The farm no doubt gives valuable lessons by way of proving or disproving agricultural theories, but it is certain that any lesson learned from its published reports, valuable as they are, must be weak indeed in comparison with those learned by an actual visit to the farm. It is the object lesson that sinks into the mind and is never lost nor forgotten. It is hoped that the farmers may take advantage of the excursion which Mr. Fysh is organizing."

BIG DAY

The Annual Circus Event—Walter L. Mains Fine Show Coming to Moose Jaw Aug. 2.

On Wednesday, Aug. 2nd, the above show will give one performance in Moose Jaw. It comes highly recommended by the press of both the States and the Provinces. It is a square dealing show, and neither gambling or pilfering is permitted near it. The attaches are gentlemen, and will make it pleasant for all visitors. Every one connected with the show is proud of the big institution with which he is connected, and the public will be surprised at the enormity of the show as well. It comes on its own special trains. The parade will embrace the principal streets and will start at 10:00 from the grounds, and will be novel and worth seeing. Many of the animals will be open to view. There are some very fine specimens of wild beast creations in the menagerie, in all over twenty-five dens. One unprecedented novelty and curiosity is the baby elephant. There is a den containing three baby lions and six weeks old, another with a young kangaroo and another with in it four baby monkeys. Some baby Arabian ponies are other features, also a big flock of ostriches and one baby chick ostrich among them. This great show has the finest lions, tigers and leopards on earth. The show is at the grounds at 11 a.m. Band concert in circus tents one hour preceding performance. Doors open at 1 p.m., program commences at 2.

The Association at its last meeting accepted the resignation of Mr. Statham as secretary-treasurer, and appointed C. A. W. Stunt to fill the vacancy.

A few more names are required of those desirous of joining the permanent corps.

Two Important Cases.

Yesterday afternoon two cases of more than ordinary importance came up for hearing before W. C. Sanders, J.P., J.M. Simington, Esq., and J. W. McCulloch, Esq. Harry Upex under the Liquor License Ordinance with supplying intoxicating liquor to Thos. Found, an intoxicated person. He pleaded guilty and was fined $400 and costs. Mr. Simington also charged Mr. Found with procuring intoxicating liquor. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs. On account of this being the first offence and the accused pleading guilty to the charge, the magistrate did not impose a heavy fine. The extreme penalty in the first case is $2000 or one year, and in the second case $200 or one month. Those interested should govern themselves accordingly.

Some people fear that the large number of Doukhobors arriving in this country will have a tendency to flood the labor market with cheap labor and thus reduce wages. But if the average Doukhobor can be induced by those working in the C.P.R. gravel pit at Packer, there is not much danger of this. This week about forty of them quit work and yesterday about thirty of them arrived in town, having walked down. Through their interpreter a Times reporter learned that they were sent to Packer on the understanding from Commissioner McCreary that they would receive $1.40 per day, and board at the rate of 70c a day; but they claim that they were only being paid $1.25 a day. In addition to this they claim that they could not load enough saws to satisfy the foremen over them, and when a number of the older men were discharged because they did not load as much as the younger men, they all quit work.

Hon. C. A. Geoffrion, minister without portfolio in the Dominion Cabinet, died at his home in Vaudreuil, P.Q., on Tuesday morning, in the fifty-seventh year of his age. In the House of Commons Sir Wilfrid Laurier paid a tribute to the memory of his late colleague, whose friendship he enjoyed for thirty-six years. Sir Charles Tupper associated himself with every word that fell from the lips of the leader of the Government.

REMEMBER THIS SALE IS OFF IN THIRTY DAYS.

We wish to thank our patrons for the appreciation they have shown of our efforts to give them the very finest line of Dry Goods, Millinery, Gents' Furnishing and Clothing that can be bought in the eastern markets at prices that meet with the approval of all.

A BROOKLYN STRIKE.

THE MEN DEMAND A REVISION OF THE TIME TABLES.

Several Employees Arrested—1,300 Policemen Are Guarding the Barns and Wires.

New York, July 17.—Another trolley strike is on in Brooklyn. So far it has not been as effective as the strike of 1895, but there is no telling how long or far reaching it may become. For some weeks past the employees on the several companies controlled by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company have been complaining that the management did not live up to the ten hour law. The men demanded a revision of the time tables at the different barns and also claimed that they should be paid twenty cents an hour for overtime, which is equivalent to $2 a day, the price which they set for a working day of ten hours.

Meetings have been held daily and nightly for the last week and it was inferred from reports given out by the employees and their advisers since Thursday last that while a strike was imminent it would not occur for some days to come. General Master Workman Parsons and District Master Workman Pines had charge of the men's affairs and a strike was called at half past four this morning. At this hour most of the motormen and conductors on the Brooklyn Traction company line had completed their night tricks and the leaders decided that this was the most opportune moment to begin what was expected to be a stubborn fight with the traction company. The Smith street, Franklin avenue and Hamilton ferry lines, which are controlled by the Coney Island Railway company, having maintained the regular terms with their employees, were not impeded in the least, but on all other roads transportation was stopped for a while and a good deal of congestion occurred in consequence. Shortly after midnight about 1,000 policemen from the precincts in the Manhattan and the Bronx districts were conveyed to the different barns and many were placed along the several routes comprising the territory covered by the Brooklyn Traction company. Up to half past seven there were very few cars run over these lines, and those that were sent out from the different barns were policed by two, three and four constables. On the Putnam avenue line only a few men refused to work and it was notable that scarcely a half dozen cars of this division were policed. The Flatbush and Bergen Beach cars, the Nostrand avenue, Gates, Ralph and Myrtle avenue cars, as well as the Third Avenue trolleys had a meagre service in the early hours of the day, but traffic on the old Nassau lines, which comprise the Fifth, Seventh, Park and Vanderbilt avenues and Douglass and Butler street roads, was practically at a standstill. The men on the Nassau road were most determined and not one of the motormen or conductors went to work.

Shortly before noon President Roosevelt's car, the Ampere, started from the city hall and made a round trip of the traction lines. Coming back from Coney Island, as it neared 23rd street and 5th avenue, the Ampere found its further progress impeded by a stalled car near the 5th avenue barn. Here a crowd of 500 people, many of whom were women and children, had congregated and the motorman of the Ampere, Howard Jackson, was attacked by several men who were strikers or in sympathy with them. The motorman received some nasty bruises on the head and legs. Six arrests were made by the police and the track was soon cleared. Throughout the afternoon boulders and large pieces of granite were taken from the nearby yard and placed on the tracks in the vicinity of Greenwood cemetery, and as cars came along at intervals of twenty and thirty minutes, their further progress was considerably delayed until these obstructions were removed. During the day 300 additional police were sent over from New York, and a close watch was kept all along the Brooklyn bridge to see that no person could interfere with the trolley wires. The only wire cutting reported to the Brooklyn police headquarters was the partial destruction of the feed cable on Flatbush avenue. Several arrests were made during the day among the ranks of the strikers and their sympathizers, but no disturbance of a very serious nature occurred up to 8 o'clock.

A MELITA LAD'S DEATH.

Melita, July 16.—A sad drowning affair occurred a few miles north of Melita on Sunday, when Louis Chandler, the 14 year old son of Mr. Hatheway, met a watery grave. The deceased went into the creek near his father's farm, and got beyond his depth. Being unable to swim he was helpless, and was soon overcome. The alarm was sounded by his younger brother, who was on the shore, but before assistance came the boy had sunk for the last time. Life was extinct when the body was recovered. The remains were interred in the Melita cemetery on Tuesday.

National Editorial Excursionists.

Vancouver, July 17.—The members of the American National Editorial association, numbering about 400 left for their homes Saturday. Attached to the Imperial limited was a Wagner sleeper for Began, in which were a number of New England editors, their wives and daughters. At 2 o'clock the regular train, consisting of eight sleepers, a dining and two baggage cars pulled out. His Worship Mayor Gordon, several aldermen and a large number of citizens were at the station to see the visitors off.

ACCIDENTS.

Drowned While Bathing in the Red River—Bicycle Racer Injured.

Winnipeg, July 17.—A young man named Thos. Hack, 21 years of age, son of Wm. Hack, market gardener, was drowned yesterday afternoon in the Red river, opposite his father's place, about a mile up the river from Elm park. The young man was bathing with his brothers and some others in view of his home. He sank so suddenly and unexpectedly that his comrades were unable to render him any assistance. A messenger was dispatched to the city for dragging irons and a number of neighbors assisted in the search for the body until darkness set in but were unsuccessful.

A sad poisoning case occurred in the north end on Saturday morning. A little boy named Reit, three years of age, and his mother were attending the fair, their home being in North Dakota. While in the city Mrs. Reit and her son stopped with friends who live on Dufferin avenue, and the little fellow discovered some lye in the house, which he drank, unconscious of the danger. He was soon in great pain and medical aid was summoned. All efforts to save his life were unavailing and the child died in a short time.

The bicycle race road on Saturday was attended by a very painful accident for one of the riders, the misfortune occurring in full view of the grand stand. Jos. Branstom, was one of the two last riders to start before Kiddle, the scratch man, having a handicap of five minutes. He had made the distance of twenty miles and was preparing for a final sprint down the stretch, when he evidently lost control of his wheel and to the horror of the spectators crossed the track and slid face downward along the top of the paddock fence, which is abundantly supplied with barb wire. The points of the wire entered his face and breast and lacerated the flesh in a most sickening manner.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Rev. Cleaver, His Wife and Companion, Nearly Drowned at Rat Portage.

Rat Portage, July 17.—Friday night about 9.15, Rev. Solomon Cleaver, of Grace church, Winnipeg, accompanied by his wife and Miss Roberts, upset in a canoe behind Coney Island, south of Harris Island. They were returning from Keewatin beach and were caught in a storm at this lonely spot, here there are no campers. After many attempts Mr. Cleaver managed to get his wife a hold on the canoe. He found Miss Roberts coming up for the second time, and catching her under the canoe, got her to hold on. This situation lasted over an hour. In the meanwhile they were drifting past Harris Island, into Barret's Bay, where their cries for help were heard and they were rescued. Upon being put in the boat the rescued trio completely collapsed, and at Barret's, with the help of the occupants, they were brought safely around and are now out of danger. Mr. Cleaver says another ten minutes would have been fatal to all.

BRAKEMAN KILLED.

St. Catharines, July 17.—G. Vansickle, a brakeman, on the Grand Trunk, was jammed between the cars at the Welland depot this morning. He was coupling two cars together when his head was caught between the bumpers and painfully lacerated. He may pull through.

THE DIVINE SARAH.

London, July 17.—Mr. Charles Froham sailed for New York on the Cunarder Lucania on Saturday. He has secured the Garrick theatre for next April for the balance of the season. Mr. Froham will present there Mrs. Carter in "Zaza." He has also arranged with Maurice Grau to present Mme. Sarah Bernhardt in America in 1900, beginning the season at the Garden theatre, New York.

The employees of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company have gone out on strike and general disorder prevails.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND

RATE RAISED FROM 3 TO 3 1/2, AND TO 4 1/2 ON SHORT LOANS.

The Bank Reserves Since June 21 Have Declined to the Amount of Nearly £4,500,000.

London, July 15.—The Statistician's article on the money outlook today will say: "The Bank of England has raised the bank rate from 3 to 3 1/2 per cent and to 4 1/2 per cent for short advances. There was some question whether the general rate should be put up to four, but it was finally decided that an advance of 1/2 per cent would be sufficient for the present."

"This step was practically forced upon the bank by further heavy reductions in the reserves of the New York banks from £9,000,000 sterling to £1,000,000 sterling. This reduction not only made further gold shipments from the United States out of the question, but brought London to face the possibility of New York taking money from Europe as soon as the wheat begins to move freely."

"The continued outflow of cash into the country, the French competition for gold in the London market, the inability of the Bank of England to obtain gold in the London market, the inability of the Bank of England to obtain gold abroad to a greater extent than is necessary to meet interior requirements, and the inability of taking gold away if she requires the additional sums for protection. The bank reserves since June 21 have declined by about £900,000."

"Will the present rate have to be further advanced is the question? Last year the reserve stood at more than £25,000,000. Then we were calling in money from Germany, and the United States was taking payment for wheat and cotton largely in securities. This year we have no balances in Germany and may be unable to pay the United States by selling stocks. Hence we must be prepared either to offer a discount rate sufficiently high to induce American banks to keep balances on this side or to send gold in payment for produce. We may consequently witness a five per cent rate here and a higher rate in Germany than last year."

The Westminster Gazette this afternoon says: "A call of £1,250,000 will fall due next Monday for payment on the Japanese loan and on various other issues of liabilities."

Loaded Cartridges.

Rochester, N. Y., July 14.—During a performance at Summerville on Lake Ontario last night the Tuscarora Indians, who have been at giving a "wild west" entertainment there during the week, fired into the crowd that had assembled watching their antics and wounded three people. That part of the programme, during which the Indians fire on a log cabin and are fired on by the occupants, was carried out without a hitch, but when the cabin was fired and the whites were obliged to fight the attacking party in the open, the trouble began.

Suddenly Miss Williamson uttered a scream and fell to the ground. Another man named Narcill, went down before another charge from a gun in the hands of the Indians, then young Raymond Brotsch toppled over. Much excitement prevailed for the space of a few minutes.

None of the injured are seriously hurt, but the wounds are extremely painful. The shooting was entirely accidental, loaded cartridges becoming mixed by mistake with the regular blanks used at the performance. No arrests were made.

Four Men Injured.

Markdale, Ont., July 16.—This afternoon at a barn raising on the premises of William Douglas, adjoining this village, the first bent had been raised, but, owing to insufficient propping, it came crashing down, crushing four men, probably in two or three cases fatally. Duncan McIntyre had a broken collar bone, shoulder bruised and chest hurt internally. When found, almost the entire weight of the bent was resting on his chest. Henry McLaughry had several ribs broken, his injured and sustained severe internal injury. Fred Brown sustained a severe blow on the head with probable injury to brain which may prove fatal. A man named Pulester had a severe cut on the side of the head.

Foundry Burned.

Hamilton, July 16.—Fire did about $30,000 or $35,000 damage to the manufacturing establishment of Messrs. Burrow, Stewart and Milne this evening and threw 300 employees out of work. The firm manufactured stoves, ranges and hot air furnaces, scales, malleables, etc. The blaze was first seen about 6.40 in the top story of the scale shop on Cannon street, about the middle building. The origin is not known. Four hours' work was required to get the fire under control. The big stock was largely saved. The structures are insured in nearly a dozen companies, and the loss is fully covered.

At the Musicians.

The glorified hand organ was painfully grinding out a composition by one of the old masters. "Do you call that music?" asked the fair young listener. "I have a sewing machine at home I could give a better concert with than that." "What kind of a sewing machine?" inquired the matter of fact man sitting next to her. "Well, it's a hummer!" she rejoined. And he listened to the music and didn't say anything more.—Chicago Tribune.

THE AORANGI ARRIVES.

An Important Decision in Regard to Mining Claims in Atlin.

Victoria, B. C., July 16.—The Australian liner Aorangi, from Sydney, 20th June, and Honolulu 6th July, arrived last evening well filled with passengers and with a large general cargo. The trip was uneventful. The other two ships of the line were sighted on their way to Australia, the Miowara on 23rd June and the Warrimoo near midnight of 6th July.

Arthur Hawkins, said to be a son of the celebrated English judge, died in the police cells yesterday morning a victim of alcoholism. He has been many years a resident in the province.

Robert Henry Brown died here yesterday after an illness of a few weeks. He was pioneer of this province coming from England in the early fifties. In 1858 he engaged in mining on the Fraser river and, in 1870, he became superintendent of the Lane Kutz Mining company. He leaves a widow.

Al. B. Brennan, of Westminster, who arrived from the north by the steamer Alpha, left Atlin, on July 5th. Two hours before he started, Mr. Justice Irving gave an important decision on a Pine creek case. Miller and McLaren, the locators, had staked under the impression that Atlin was in the Northwest and they therefore claimed 1,000 feet of the ground. Mr. Justice Irving decided that as Atlin was in British Columbia the laws of this province must apply and therefore Miller and McLaren, his partner, are only entitled to 500 feet.

Mr. Brennan says that the lieutenant-governor had not left Atlin for the coast on July 5, and the news of the trouble in the cabinet was not known till the Alpha met the Tees some distance from Skagway on July 5th.

Injunction and $100 Damages.

Toronto, July 16.—At Osgoode hall yesterday morning Dr. Snider sued Dr. McKelvie for an injunction and damages. Dr. Snider found he broke his agreement and sued. Judge Robertson granted an injunction and $100 damages.

CAPE COLONY AFFAIRS

AFRIKANDER PARTY WORKING UP A BOER AGITATION.

A Royalist Meeting Interrupted and the Speakers Dragged From the Platform.

Cape Town, July 14.—The Cape parliament will open today and exciting scenes are anticipated, owing to the attitude of Premier Schreiner on the Transvaal question. A large number of the opposition members favor his impeachment. In the meantime the Afrikaner party is working up a Boer agitation and doing its utmost in this direction. An attempt to hold a loyalist meeting at Worcester this afternoon was frustrated by the Afrikaners, who precipitated disgraceful scenes, forcibly dragging the royalist speakers from the platform and expelling them from the hall amid jeers and insults. The military authorities here are purchasing horses, mules and wagons, and preparing to forward supplies to Kimberley.

Pretoria, July 14.—The volksraad today adopted the preamble of the franchise law, which declares that the necessity exists for the immediate adoption of the law, thus avoiding the three months' previous publication required by the constitution. The decision of the articles of the law is now in progress.

London, July 14.—The house of commons in committee held an all night session over the tithes rent charge rating bill, the second reading of which was carried on June 29 by a majority of 314 against 186. The government forced the clause through by means of the closure, and the bill finally passed through the committee, which rose at four o'clock.

The Times' Pekin correspondent says an imperial edict has been issued denouncing universal speculation in the collection of the Chinese revenue and appealing for a cessation of malpractices which are increasing the country's financial straits.

Paris, July 14.—Sir Richard Webster, attorney-general for Great Britain, concluded today before the Venezuelan arbitration commission his presentation of the British case. During the course of his remarks he said it would be the death blow to arbitration if the court sanctioned such a claim as advanced by Venezuela. It would, he added, in fact simply imply that an unsupported claim amounted to little. The session of the commission then adjourned until next Wednesday.

CAPITALISTIC ALLIANCE.

American China Development Co. and the British and Chinese Corporation.

New York, July 14.—A morning paper will publish the following this morning: A business alliance of American and English capitalists has been recently formed which is of unusual interest and importance because of the leading positions held by these men on both sides of the Atlantic; because of the many millions of dollars involved in it; because the United States government is about to be asked to give the compact official sanction and moral support; because Britain has already approved it, and because the field of its operations is beyond the jurisdiction of both nations. The announcement of this alliance was made yesterday by W. F. Whitridge, of the firm of Cary and Whitridge, who now fills the place left vacant by the death of Ex-Senator Bryce, as the chairman of the executive committee of the American China Development Co. The company is one party to the agreement and the other is the British and Chinese corporation. This makes a combination of the most powerful capitalists in the world; the field of their activities is China.

B. C. Mining Properties.

Ottawa, July 14.—Speaking of the report published that Mackenzie and Mann are preparing to make a flotation of all or a large part of their British Columbia mines in one company either on the Montreal or the London markets, Mr. D. B. Macdonald says that this was not strictly correct. He said that a certain portion of their mines will be floated, but it has not been decided on which market, nor will the mines be floated in block as stated. The North Star group at Fort Steele will be floated as a separate group and bonded at $1,500,000. The Boundary properties will form another group, bonded at $5,000,000, making a combined total capitalization of the different companies of $6,500,000 and not $10,000,000 for one company, as stated in the dispatch. The decision to float the properties of a recent date and the details of the scheme have yet to be worked out.

Toronto, July 14.—After serving twenty months of a five year sentence James Hutton, who fatally stabbed his son with a pair of shears in a tailor shop at the corner of Victoria and Richmond streets, has been released. The crime was committed October 20, 1897. Hutton was found guilty of manslaughter. He is 70 years of age.

Body of May McCoy Exhumed. Marmora, Ont., July 14.—May McCoy, aged 16, while working in a garden Thursday morning, died suddenly. The corner was called and on investigation found a bottle of strychnine in the house. No action was taken and the body allowed to be buried. Yesterday the body was exhumed and a postmortem examination held. A coroner's jury was empanelled, which met last night. After taking some evidence, adjournment was made for further investigation.

London, Ont., Strike. The striking street railway employees today announced that they could not accept the company's offer of limited arbitration of the points in dispute. They say nothing short of a proposition covering every point will be considered by them.

A civic committee is now holding a conference with the men and the company in a final effort to arrive at a settlement. Failing in this, the committee has decided to set forth what it considers a fair basis of arbitration.

LARGEST ATTENDANCE.

On Citizens' Day 21,000 People Visited the Big Summer Fair.

Winnipeg, July 14.—The Industrial Exhibition made a new high water mark as regards attendance yesterday, when over 21,000 people went through the gates. The occasion was Citizens' Day, when a half holiday was proclaimed to allow Winnipeggers to spend a few hours in viewing the exhibits and attractions of their big summer fair. The regular attendance of citizens and visitors who are making the city their headquarters during the week was augmented by excursions from Carman, Rat Portage, and the Glenboro branch, which landed on the C. P. R. platform some 1,000 people.

The crowd began to move towards the grounds shortly after one o'clock and before two the street cars were filled to overflowing. The C. P. R. special carrying passengers to the fair gave excellent service in handling the crowds of people, who struggled for places. The crowds were large in the afternoon, but still larger in the evening, when fresh crowds began to arrive between 6 and 7 o'clock, and the grand stand was again filled to overflowing, standing room in the paddock being at a premium. Never before have the exhibition grounds been called upon to hold such a crowd and the fullest credit should be given to the management generally and to the director in charge of the stand in particular for the perfect arrangements which were made for the handling of such an immense concourse of people. The railway company also deserve praise for the care exercised in preventing accidents on their exhibition platform, not a single person being reported hurt during the day.

The general opinion from the assignee's statement was that the estate would not pay more than 25 cents on the dollar on liabilities, which amount to about $60,000. Howars gave

CHAPTER I.

"You were the woman?"

"Yes, it was I."

The man who spoke was flushed, appealing, eager; the woman beside him, although perfectly pale, showed no sign of emotion in her face. They were walking side by side on a broad grassy road or track which ran into the very heart of the woodlands. On either side the trees raised their mighty arms so high that little of the blue sky could be seen between their fluttering yellow leaves. Yet the sunshine filtered down upon the track, and the bramble bushes beneath the boughs and bars of light lay athwart the delicate shadows through which the man and woman trod. Olwen thought vaguely to herself that the play of light and shade symbolized the chances and changes of the life that she had led, but Maurice Harding, at her side, was far too busy with his own views and aspirations to be alive to symbols. He was a hard-headed, skeptical man by nature, and Olwen Dare was a fanciful woman in her way.

They were both noticeable people in appearance. Harding was above the middle height; he had broad shoulders and a little, sinewy figure. His face was ugly—there was no denying the fact; the features were dark, rugged and stern, but the deeply set eyes were remarkable for their brilliance and the drooping mustache had some irascible lines about the mouth. There were energy, decision, determination, in the face, but not much softness and certainly no weakness of any sort. One could well imagine that his fame as an explorer of a singularly daring nature had been well deserved.

Miss Dare was tall—for a woman—and she was also beautiful. The perfect proportion of her limbs gave her a grace of movement which had been the first cause of Harding's attraction toward her. She walked, he said, "like a savage queen," not like a modern, conventional young lady of society. This speech might have provoked society against Miss Dare—for Harding's criticisms were respected—had she not been already popular and rich. She might walk "like a savage queen" as much as she pleased and still be admired. As a matter of fact, her graceful walk and dignified carriage were truly admirable. For the rest she was rather pale, with a beautifully shaped oval face, dark wavy hair and gray eyes with long, curly lashes. She had the excellent gift of a sweet voice and a sweeter smile, and by dint of her many graces and beauties she had taken captive the heart of Maurice Harding and brought him a very slave to her feet. And now, when the decisive moment had come and he had poured out the story of his love, she calmly and coldly refused him and told him why.

They were walking in the park belonging to a country house where they were guests. People asked them together, as all the world expected daily to hear that they were engaged. It would surprise the world as much as it surprised Harding to know that she had refused him, for she had given him open and marked encouragement. And she was not a woman who dispensed her favors lightly. He had proposed, and in refusing him she had added a few pregnant sentences of explanation that caused him to utter the words already recorded.

"You were the woman?"

And she had answered, "Yes, it was I."

"But I did not know you. I had no idea," he stammered.

"That was where the injustice of the thing came in," said Olwen calmly. "You did not know me, you know nothing about me except that I was a young girl, living in the country, poor, untalented, not a match, as you considered, for your friend and therefore to be branded as an adventuress. Oh, yes, I have seen the letter you wrote about me to Lionel Borrodale and a more unflattering attack upon a girl's character and reputation I never imagined to myself. If we were not in polite society and bound by the chains of convention, I should say—"

She stopped suddenly and seemed to consider. Harding, very white beneath his bronze, and biting his mustache furiously, turned to her end.

"Go on," he said harshly. "We are not 'polite society,' you and I. You may be as free from convention as I am, if you like. You would say what?"

"I should say," she proceeded calmly "that you had lied."

"Do you know what you are saying? Do you know how you are insulting me?" he broke out in a hoarse, suffocated voice.

"Perhaps you forget that you insulted me—once," she said, in passionless, level tones.

"Not purposely! Not knowingly! I was deceived. I swear it, Olwen! On my life and soul I swear that I was told of a very different woman and what I said of her was true enough, but it was never said of you."

—perhaps. He asked me to be his wife. You know why I was not."

"Good heavens! Who would have thought it! Borrodale must have been a weak fool!"

"Do not abuse a man who is dead," said Olwen quietly. "You were his guardian. He naturally attached some value to your opinion. When you wrote to him, ordering him back to town and informing him that you knew—know, mind you, that I was an unprincipled little adventuress and worse, a woman of evil reputation, in fact—it was natural that he should be startled."

"He showed you my letter? And you put up with such an insult?"

"The insults were in the letter. His showing it to me was a detail. He was in great trouble over it. I advised him at once to obey his guardian and go back to London."

"And he went?"

"It is absurd for you to be indignant, Mr. Harding. You know that he went and why. You know that you threatened him with all sorts of pains and penalties if he did not return to London immediately. I seconded your efforts to the best of my ability. I told him to obey you and to come back when—or if—he obtained your consent. He never came back."

"And you blame me for that?"

"Well, naturally. You kept him in town, did you not?"

"You loved him—that boy?"

"I loved him as well as I knew how."

"And you have never forgiven the man who separated you?"

She hesitated before replying, but spoke at last in a clear and resolute tone.

"The separation was hard to bear. It did not break my heart, but it gave me much pain. He never wrote to explain why he had abandoned me, but I knew well enough that it was because of my advice—your opinion. And when I realized after weeks and months of suspense and misery that you had triumphed over me and got the poor boy under your thumb again then I said to myself—"

She paused again, but as he made an eager gesture she resumed her speech.

"I said to myself that if ever I met the man who had shown himself capable of such cruelty to an unoffending girl, who had tried to blacken her reputation in the eyes of the man she loved and shown neither mercy nor justice in his anxiety that his ward should marry a wealthy woman—if I met that man, I should be glad if in any way I could make him suffer. It was unlikely that I should ever meet him, but you see, the unlikely things sometimes happen—and now that I am a rich woman and Lionel Borrodale is dead—we have met."

"Then am I to understand that you deliberately set yourself to attract me, with the intention of refusing me should I be so blind as to walk into your trap?"

She raised her eyebrows and glanced at him with a bitter smile.

A NINGA MYSTERY.

Skeleton of Thomas Ward Discovered and Then Strangely Disappears.

Winnipeg, July 12.—The town of Ninga, in the southwestern portion of the province, is at present greatly excited over a mystery which came to light there on Saturday last, only to be plunged into deeper darkness the next day.

The facts of the case briefly are as follows: Some five or six years ago a well known farmer in the district by the name of Thos. Ward sold the quarter section of land on which he had his home for $400 in cash, and into Ninga and almost immediately disappeared as completely as if the earth had swallowed him up.

As he had always been a man of steady habits and was widely known and popular in the district, his sudden disappearance was a matter of considerable speculation among his friends, and many unavailing efforts were made to discover his whereabouts. Finally a rumor was circulated to the effect that he had been seen in the States, and as no other story was brought forward, this was generally accepted, although Ward's more intimate friends never placed much credence in it. The matter had remained in this condition until last Saturday, when residents of Ninga who were digging in a gravel pit about a mile out of that town came suddenly upon the skeleton of a man buried in the gravel.

The head and shoulders were all that were at first exposed, and the attention of one of the men who had previously been very intimate with Ward was drawn to the teeth which remained intact in the skull. Two of these in the front of the upper jaw of the skeleton were false and corresponded exactly with those of Ward. As the hour was late they decided to return to Ninga at once and report the matter to the magistrate and to return to the spot in the morning to complete the excavation. They reported the matter to the magistrate and the news was at once spread around the town, where it created considerable excitement. In the morning a large number of the leading citizens of the town accompanied the two men to the pit where to their surprise and amazement every vestige of the skeleton had disappeared. The theory around the town and one which flatters pretty general credence, that the same man who put Ward out of the way the first time is accountable for his second disappearance and several will go so far as to state the direction in which their suspicions point.

HAPPY:

His youthful years had withered in the slum where he and his wife were bred.

He was a burden, and, though lips were dumb, hearts wished that he were dead.

And so wished he; for in his wearied soul there was but one desire—

To die, to die, to reach a strange, vague goal where time would cease to tire.

But on a day some one with grave, sweet face and tender, skillful hands—

Came to his side and bore him from the place. It seemed, to faroff lands.

Yet, after all, 'twas but a whirling hour Out of the smoke-blind town

To where the sky shone with unblemished power Over a fair, broad down.

And he, the cripple, whose and springs were more Than one who watched him kneel.

He never seen so much green grass before Nor skies so big and blue.

He was so softly glad, so full of peace. He laid him back and sighed

And watched the deep sky and its floating fleecy.

Dreaming that he had died.

NICOLA'S CONVERSION.

Jaupierre was celebrating, for it was the beginning of the village festival in honor of that good saint who, all the year through, takes such good care of the village.

In every house work was laid aside. The young people hurried to the dance. The old people looked on or rested at home from the many cares that come with the winemaking and the fruit gathering.

The blacksmith's house stood in the midst of the village, but the doors and windows were closed, and the anvil was silent, for "the marshal" had wandered out with his wife and daughter into what was at that time the Frenchman's paradise—a bare, sunny spot outside the town, with dusty fruit trees and big vegetable beds.

This spot the Frenchman loved to call his "garden."

Upon a rickety bench without a back, in front of a wooden hut for the garden tools, sat "monsieur" and studied "Little Lorraine" with suppressed invectives against the "cursed Protestants." Madame had unthroned herself upon an overturned plender tub in the path and had made fast to the trunk of a young apple tree that netting work which for some unaccountable reason the women of that province are always doing.

Meanwhile Celestine, the dark-eyed laughter, leaned sulkily against the hedge and picked to pieces the bunch of asters and mignonette which had been stuck into her pink silk sash for a gala decoration. She started nervously when the priest, reading his breviary as he strolled along, gave her a friendly greeting after he had inquiringly scanned her face, usually so gay.

"Oh, Celestine!" cried the genial priest nodding to her. "Not at the dance? What is the matter?"

"None of your business," Celestine would have answered saying, but she held her tongue, while her blushing face dropped before the keeper of her conscience.

"Really you must confide in St. Joseph," continued the priest laughingly as he courteously declined Father Aubert's invitation to join them. He thanked Madame for the "Mirabelle de Metz," the little sugary plums she had given him, and said goodby to the good people for the present.

Without stopping he kept on his way, for his sharp, clever eyes had discovered something toward which he eagerly curved.

But this something—a slim, stocky headed lad—at once disappeared behind a peach thicket toward a footpath by the side of the road.

"Hello, Nicola!" called the priest. "Why are you slinking through the woods there and keeping Celestine waiting? Surely you ought to take her to the dance."

Nicola looked very much ashamed and slowly turned around, but when the priest, still diligently reading in his book, had passed by and disappeared behind a second clump of bushes as he followed the path toward the lad stood for a time undecided, lazily stretched himself, finally turned back again and slowly, as before, sauntered along the woody path, sweet with thyme, humming this witty and beautiful song:

End the good God willed, My name had been Jerome; But it seemed best to my ma To call me Nicola—ha! ha! ha! Nicola—

At last he came to the little chapel, gained its sunny side and, with a sigh, dropped down where soft silvery grass weeds covered the warm earth.

Yes, he had intended to go after Celestine—at least, he had made her think so the night before, when he lounged around in the bright sunlight and watched the flying sparks, but luckily he had not told her so in unmistakable words—trust Nicola always to watch out for that. Promises and obligations are such heavy, heavy burdens! He knew this from many a painful experience. This was why he was called "Lazy Nicola."

Naturally the evening before his little promise had not seemed a burden. He was too fond of pretty Celestine for that. Today, when he loitered past the inn on his way to get his girl, when he felt the heat and the heat and saw how the bright drops stood on the dancers' foreheads, it seemed to him very pleasant to talk with Celestine of a cool autumn evening by the blazing fire or to sit with her on the vineyard terrace in the sunshine of an October morning, but here, to whirl round and round in the sweat of his brow—he really was a foolish fellow for that, and what pleasure could it be to her anyhow? That her whole body thrilled with impetuous vitality, that her uttering felt ached to dance and that only too willingly would she have shown her little white clad person by the side of the handsome fellow in the village of all this joy, comfort and loving Nicola really had no suspicion.

For Nicola was not only the handsome lad, but also the richest and best brought up youngster in the whole neighborhood, and so used to having the ripe fruit fall into his hands that it hardly seemed worth while to stretch it out.

Certainly he didn't care to make any unnecessary exertion, as in the present case, and so he basked in the sunshine till he fell asleep and thus got rid of all troublesome thoughts.

Celestine, in the meantime, still stood by the hedge and thought about the words of the priest, which she knew very well how to apply. At first she was rather angry. She wrinkled her forehead and contemptuously turned down the corner of her mouth; then she looked more thoughtful.

At last the young girl laughed. She thought scornfully, murmured something to herself about "stupidity" and declared, turning to her parents, that she would take her godmother some apples. So she filled a basket with the red-checked fruit and slowly walked away. At first she went in the right direction, but suddenly, turning back, she followed a narrow path behind the garden toward the bush-bordered road leading to the little chapel.

This chapel is dedicated to St. Joseph, whose image adorns the open, cell-like shrine. Over his shoulders hangs a sheepskin, and he leans upon his staff, while from under his weather-beaten halo his face beams forth peacefully.

He may well look friendly, for the devout who turn to him in trouble are almost always pretty young girls.

St. Joseph of Jaupierre is widely renowned. His especial delight is to help young girls get the right husband. He always grants their requests if such requests are consistent with their temporal success and their eternal welfare.

At all events he never leaves the petitioner in distressing uncertainty as to her fate, but he announces his intentions in the matter by an unmistakable sign. After silently making a wish the girl takes a stone and throws it upon the roof of the little chapel, and if the stone stays there it foretells with unfailing certainty that her request shall be granted, but if the stone rolls off the chapel has a good reason for refusing his help.

For some little time after she had reached the chapel Celestine stood still, gazing now and then at the saint and thinking scornfully of her lazy lover.

"I won't do it," she said softly, set her basket down and folded her arms defiantly. "Certainly not." Here some bright, angry tears rose to her eyes.

But the longer she looked at the saint the friendlier he seemed to smile, until at last mischief shone from every wrinkle of his brightly painted face, as if he'd like to say:

"Don't fool yourself, Celestine; you'd be tickled to death to get him, even if he were ten times lazier."

"Yes, yes!" at last the young girl whispered, and, as if somebody had forced her to do so, she suddenly sank upon her knees, raised her hands and prayed from the bottom of her soul, "Give him to me, dear St. Joseph; oh, do give him to me!" with whatever else her innocent heart prompted.

And such perfect trust came over her that she sat up with all her confidence, laughingly shook the tears from her blushing cheeks and began to look around for the stone which, it was to be hoped, would prove no disappointment.

But the seekers had already been too numerous. Nowhere around was there a stone to throw, and even as she cast the hedge the path was as clear of stones as a well tilled wheatfield. The best thing to do was to bring one's stone along.

Celestine wandered a ways up and down the path, but without success. Then her glance fell upon the basket, and with a smile she bent over, picked out the big, red apple, and, without stopping to remember the stories past of that fruit, she threw it with all her might upon the chapel roof.

A second she waited with beating heart. Then she breathed more freely, for the apple did not fall back, but rested upon the ridge pole of the little church. She leaned against the doorpost, folded her hands in her lap and looked up with thankful heart to the saint, who now showed his usual calm and friendly countenance. Little by little she sank into the loveliest day dream.

Nicola had not enjoyed sweet slumber long. The sun blistered the whitewashed walls of the chapel and burned fiercely down on him, for in this blessed province the sun, even so late in the year, the sun is still hot enough to make the grapes sweet and the drinker hot and thirsty.

The sleeper began to be troubled by a bad dream, which presently became a frightful nightmare.

He dreamed that he was sweltering in purgatory, and, like a forge, the fire was only on one side of him, so that on that side he grew perfectly crisp. Piteously he begged a lively little devil who kept stirring up the fire to let him turn round, but the tiny fiend snickered derisively and answered that he must keep quiet, that as he was uncommonly fond of comfort now for 10,000 years he wouldn't need to stir, for there would be plenty of time after that to toast his other side.

But poor Nicola suffered the worst from the thirst which the infernal flames aroused, and, sighing sadly, looked upward. There he saw above him floating on the clouds the garden of paradise. The angels seemed to be gathering in the harvest, for they shook a magnificent apple tree till the fine fruit rolled down on all sides.

Nicola eagerly watched for some to fall in his neighborhood. He called to the angels to take pity on him, but nobody seemed to notice him. Then among all the blond heads there appeared a dark, roguish face, with Celestine's well known features. This brunette scrupled did not seem blind to the agonies of the sufferer, for just when he believed he should faint away she seized a beautiful red checked apple and threw it down to Nicola, so that it hit his pentitent breast a smart rap. Then his rigid limbs relaxed; he sprang up.

Purgatory and paradise vanished, and the bright autumn sun shone over him. But near him, in the green grass, lay the fruit of paradise. As his thirst had remained he seized the apple, bit into it thoughtfully but eagerly and devoured it to the very core.

When he had finished that and had thought a little about his dream, with awful clearness he perceived that his vision might come true. Like a crushing burden the idea settled upon his soul that now he must take over a new lot, that now he must take hold in earnest, that he, too, must bow before the first law, "In the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat thy bread." And the future seemed to stretch out before him like a long, dusty road.

Suddenly he remembered the dark-eyed angel, and, with heartfelt longing he thought of the shamefully deserted Celestine, the only person who could scatter flowers along that dreary, toilsome path through life he was determined henceforth to travel.

He sprang up more quickly than he had ever done before and hurried around the chapel to the path. There he saw the lovely girl sitting dreaming on the threshold. When she heard his step and looked up, the new spirit in him shone from his eyes and spoke in the pressure of his hand, as, sitting hers, the young fellow asked eagerly:

"Celestine, at the next village festival will you dance with me as my little wife?"

She answered simply:

"Let us thank St. Joseph."—From the German For Short Stories.

WAS AN EASY VICTIM.

But He Didn't Seem to Realize That He Was.

"Speaking of practical jokes" said a Canal street business man who has just returned from a trip through north Georgia. "I saw that omelet trick played on a fellow in Atlanta the other night, and I was really amazed that he didn't go on the warpath then and there. The thing occurred at a restaurant where I was taking supper with four chance acquaintances made on the trip."

"One of the party was a cigar salesman from Richmond, and after supper he amused us with some sleight of hand tricks. Finally he turned to a north Georgia merchant, who was in the crowd and asked him if he had ever seen an omelet made in a hat. The merchant was a portly, rather pompous, individual, and replied, after some thought, that he had not."

"Well," said the tobacco man, "I bet the cigars for us two that I can make an omelet in the crown of your silk hat without damaging it in the slightest degree."

"I knew what was coming and began to giggle hysterically, but the Georgian remarked solemnly that he knew he would lose, but was willing to pay 20 cents to see the trick."

"With that he handed over his hat, which was brand new, and the tobacco salesman proceeded to send for some eggs and broke several into the crown. He stirred them up with a knife and then held the hat over the gas. In about three seconds it was a ghastly, hideous ruin, dripping raw eggs through a big hole burned in the top. The conjurer looked surprised and pained."

"By jove!" he exclaimed, "you've beat me out of the cigars! I've forgotten how to do that trick!"

"As the Georgian examined his wrecked tiff his face was a study for a painter. A few hours later I encountered him at the hotel, and he took me aside."

"I won that fellow's cigars all right," he said, "but still I think it was a kind of a foolish bet."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He came to a sudden stop and confronted her.

ing, his hands thrust deep into his pockets. When he spoke, it was in short, jerky sentences, which showed more clearly than elaborate periods would have done the keenness of his pain.

"I was a brute, I know, and a fool, too, it seems. It's useless to try to expiate oneself, but at the time I heard all the things—those things in the letter—about the woman who taught that school. I believe they were true. She was dismissed afterward for misconduct. But, of course, that's nothing to the point. I can only say that I regret my action. I regretted it long ago when I saw Lionel's development. There's nothing more to be said but to beg your pardon—and go."

DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mr. B. Nicholson, of the Manor House, Winnipeg, Man., relates the following startling facts: "For a long time I was troubled with Eczema on my ears, and for several weeks I doctored with a prominent Winnipeg doctor to no avail. I was induced by a friend who had been cured by Dr. Chase's Ointment to give it a trial. The first application gave instant relief, and before using all of one box I was completely cured, and have had no return of the horrible disease."

For itching skin diseases Dr. Chase's Ointment has no equal in the whole world. It stands alone as the one absolute cure for Eczema, Salt Rheum and Piles, and has never failed to cure these torturing diseases.

If you are not convinced of the wonderful merit of Dr. Chase's Ointment by such evidence as is published from time to time in this paper nothing short of a trial will convince you. Scores and thousands of skeptical ones have been convinced by being absolutely cured. You can rely absolutely on this great ointment to cure any case of Eczema, Salt Rheum or Piles. ### PRAIRIE FIRES.

About this time of year our readers begin to look for the appearance of the annual scourge of this country—the prairie fires. Once in a while we may have an early frost, sometimes drought, but every year, as sure as autumn follows summer, we have prairie fires more or less destructive.

There was a time, not so very long ago, when it was a difficult matter to convince the settlers—not to mention the Government at Ottawa—that prairie fires were really a base to this country. But happily that day is past and the question now is, not what harm they do, but how can we prevent them?

That is the question which the Dominion authorities, the local Legislature, the C.P.R. and the settlers have been endeavoring to cope with for the past few years; but despite their united efforts the annual scourge still sweeps over our country destroying our very limited supply of timber, burning our farm buildings and stacks and converting our vast tracts of pasture into a blackened waste.

Owing to the very luxuriant growth of grass this year, the prairie fires this fall will in all probability be more severe than ever. The fact of the matter is if a large fire gets a good start it will be beyond the power of man to stop it. Past experience should therefore teach us the advisability of taking extra precautions, and a united effort should be put forth by all concerned to cope with the evil. The Dominion Government should put on a special fire patrol, both in settled and unsettled districts, and the North-West authorities and settlers should see to it that the Ordinance respecting prairie fires is thoroughly enforced. The ordinance, and the importance of its strict observance, should also be explained to the school children, so that they will not be ignorant of the law in this respect. It is only by strict vigilance and the united efforts of all concerned that these prairie fires can be prevented from starting or controlled when started.

SENATE REFORM.

In the House of Commons on Wednesday, Premier Laurier was to move the following resolution regarding the Senate of Canada:

"That a humble address be presented to Her Majesty the Queen setting forth that the provisions of the British North America Act of 1867 respecting the powers of the Senate of Canada in the making of laws are unsatisfactory, and should be brought more into harmony with the principle of popular government, and praying that Her Majesty may be pleased to recommend to the Imperial Parliament a measure for the amendment of said act in such terms as will effectually make provisions as follows:

"If the House of Commons passes any bill which the Senate rejects or fails to pass to pass or amends in a way not accepted by the House of Commons, then if the House of Commons at the next following session again pass such a bill and the Senate again rejects or fails to pass or amends the same in a way not accepted by the Commons, the Governor-General may, by proclamation, convene one or more joint sittings of the members of the two houses for the further consideration of such a bill or amendments, and the question whether such bill or amendment shall pass shall be decided by a majority of the members of the two houses present and voting, and the vote of any such joint sitting shall as respects such a bill or amendments have the same force and effect as a vote of the Senate under the existing constitution."

The Supplementary Estimates for the year 1898-1899 were brought down Tuesday afternoon. They total $5,492,343. There is a total of $700,000 for the Yukon, which includes $225,000 for 100 miles of telegraph line. $1,005,000 will be expended on transportation improvements. Chas. Brenner gets $5,334 for his old claim of furs, $10,500 is set aside to defray the expenses connected with the Peace River Indian Commission, and $10,480 to purchase provisions for the Indians during the negotiations. $10,600 will be expended in the North West Territories, which includes $800 for the enlargement of the Moose Jaw Court House, and also the following items: Regina government house, sidewalks, $500. Regina, Lieutenant-Governor's residence, improvements and drainage, $2,500. Edmonton North, immigrant building, $3,000. St. Mary's, customs office, $300. Southern Alberta district, immigrant building, $1,500. Medicine Hat, court house, $4,000. Immigrant building at a point on the Canadian Northern railway in the Swan River district, $2,500. Prince Albert, court house, artesian well, $1,100.

As an importing centre and distributing point Toronto is away ahead of any border American city of even greater population. The customs receipts of Buffalo are under $1,000,000, while Toronto during the fiscal year ending June 30 collected in duties close to $5,000,000. The export trade is also steadily increasing and annually runs up into millions in value. In addition to the value of goods imported must be reckoned the immense turnover in domestic goods, of which no fair estimate can be formed but can only be inferred from the volume of business transacted by the wholesale dealers and departmental stores, apart from the sales direct to smaller concerns. With the increase of population consequent upon the development of the Northwest and Northern Ontario, the possibilities of future expansion in the trade of Toronto may fairly startle the most sanguine citizen. In fact no possible combination of circumstances can now retard the growth of the trade of the Queen City.—World.

The true note of self-respecting Canadian loyalty to the Empire was sounded by Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Parliament when, in speaking of the Dominion Government's veto of British Columbia legislation against Japanese, he said:—"As a part of the British Empire we have duties to discharge to the Empire which we cannot ignore. *** It will not do for us as British subjects only to sing 'God Save the Queen,' and to boast of our connections at banquets and by demonstrations and celebrations. We must also be prepared to make some sacrifices. *** If we take the glory and the advantages we must also take the duties, be ready for them and abide by them.

The Moosomin Spectator, in a recent article says:—

There is no good reason why a good square election fight may not be held, and all that is required is a determination to allow the crooks no free scope to practice their dirty practices. A sure cure for bribery and dark methods would soon be found if political agents and the party press would unite, not in denouncing trickery merely, but in rejecting it. The trouble is to-day that the press and politicians of one party content themselves in proclaiming against the wrong doing of the other party. They overlook the crookedness in their own party. The perfect torrents of denunciation that are poured forth against the immorality and obliquity of the other sinners will have little effect so long as the sinners of the denouncing party are overlooked.

During the thirty years of its existence the Montreal Daily Witness has never contained the ads of theatres, public houses or tobacco manufacturers, nor general printing accepted for those trades. No dramatic criticisms ever appear, racing results have no place, and prize fights never find mention in its pages. And yet it goes on and on—and is decidedly a paper worth reading.—Ex.

The revenue of the Canadian Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, exceeded that of the previous year by $5,803,081. The total amount of revenue was $44,698,155, which is the largest the Dominion has ever had. The expenditure was considerably less than the income, but the exact figures are not yet known.

INAUGURAL SERMON.

Rev. Mr. Vrooman Assumes Pastoral Control of Maple Street Congregational Church.

Winnipeg Telegram:—Rev. Mr. Vrooman on Sunday assumed pastoral charge of the Maple Street Congregational church, and as this congregation is in future to be in closer relationship with the Central church, based on the service in the latter, where a union communion service was held in the morning. There was a larger congregation. Both Revs. Hugh Pedley and Mr. Vrooman taking part. The latter preached a most acceptable sermon on the actual and ideal church, based on the words of the Apostle Paul, fifth chapter, verses 26 and 27. In considering the actual church reference was made to the internal conditions of early Christian congregations, the middle ages and the present period, and the preacher was optimistic in his opinion that the present showed no decadence, but a more advanced and intelligent conception of the truth. The ideal could only be reached by assimilation of a Christ-like character and the continual exercise of the virtues in the daily lives of the professed followers of the Saviour. Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Vrooman were warmly greeted by the members at the close of the service, and in the evening he conducted the regular service in the Maple Street church.

A foul breath is one of the greatest afflictions that a man or woman can have. An affliction not only to themselves but to those with whom they come in contact. A foul breath is a great discourager of affection. It would probably be more so if people only realized just what bad breath means. Bad breath is one of the symptoms of constipation. Stomach of the other symptoms are sour stomach, loss of appetite, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, heartburn and distress after eating. These things mean indigestion. They lead to dyspepsia and worse things. They all start with constipation, and constipation is inexcusable, because it can be cured—easily, quickly and permanently by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They give to nature just the little help that she needs. There is no case of biliousness, constipation, indigestion "heartburn," or any of the rest of the nightmare breeding brood, that these little pellets will not cure.

Send 31 cents in one-cent stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., and receive Dr. Pierce's 1008 page "Common Sense Medical Adviser," profusely illustrated.

Cottonwood.

A concert and picnic was held on Friday, July 14th, under the auspices of the Board of Management of the Presbyterian church. The weather was delightful. Football was the favorite pastime, and a special feature of interest was the delightful music of the Stony Beach brass band. The refreshment stall was well patronized, and, at six o'clock, a sumptuous repast was provided. A concert was held in the evening. The Rev. J. A. G. Stirling presided, and the Rev. W. P. Adam, of Lumsden, gave an excellent address. The programme consisted of songs, readings, recitations and dialogues, interspersed with instrumental music. Both the picnic and the concert were attended by a great concourse of people. The proceeds of the concert had been deducted, amounted to $52.00. The recent picnic and concert, under the auspices of the Stony Beach Ladies' Missionary Society, realized $51.00. Thus, during the months of June and July, the Cottonwood Home Mission field, which is under the care of the Rev. J. A. G. Stirling, has raised, by means of special efforts, over one hundred dollars.

Moose Jaw Cricket Club.

On Wednesday evening, after practice was over, an informal meeting was held and the Moose Jaw Cricket Club was inaugurated. Mr. Seymour Green was elected captain, and Mr. H. B. Hulme Goodier, secretary. It is hoped that one or two matches may be arranged this season, and at any rate the interest aroused in and the impetus given to the club this year should make a strong basis on which to build up a powerful club next season. There will be no subscription for this year, as there will not be a full summer's practice possible, and any desirous to join and who would be able to play should send in their name to Mr. Green or Mr. Goodier, when all particulars will be given them. We hope many will join and help reorganize this "King of English sports" in Moose Jaw.

FROM PRAIRIE TO SEA. ACROSS SIX HUNDRED MILES OF MOUNTAINS

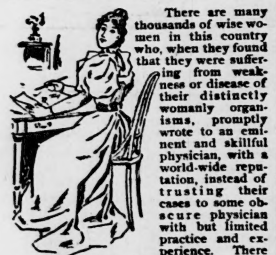

And One Thousand Miles of Fertile Prairie—The Western Editors Feast on the Beauties of Nature and the Grandeur of the Rocky Mountains.

In a recent issue we attempted to crowd into as few words as possible a short description of part of our National Park as seen by the members of the Western Canada Press Association while on their first annual excursion. The day at Banff was all too short to give a fair idea of the place to the superficial observer, but papermen more quickly even on a pleasure trip, and they left early next morning to cross the "sea of mountains" which lay between them and Vancouver. Many experienced travelers and gifted professional writers have attempted to present to the public graphic pictures of British Columbia's marvellous scenery. It would therefore be presumptuous on the part of a country editor to take it upon himself to give even an idea of the grandeur and beauty of the deep precipices and yawning canyons of the Kicking Horse, the Columbia, the Thompson, or the loveliness of the Fraser River Valley, or the awful grandeur of the towering, snow-capped mountains, sometimes disappearing in the clouds of heaven. Our vocabulary of adjectives is insufficient and our pen impotent to describe with any degree of adequacy the wondrous beauty of the Creator's handiwork.

The first stop after leaving Banff was made at the Glacier House, which is only thirty minutes from the greatest glacier in British Columbia, at the left of which Sir Donald rises, a naked and abrupt pyramid, to the height of more than a mile and a half above the railway, which is over 4,000 feet above sea level.

Here the excursionists have a drink from the molten glacier and engage in a snowball match on the green lawn while fountains sparkle nearby. We next come to Albert Canyon, where the train stops a few minutes to allow us to view this wonderful spectacle. From solidly built balconies we look into the boiling cauld-

There are many thousands of wise women in this country who, when they found that they were suffering from weakness or disease of their distinctly womanly organs, promptly wrote to an eminent and skillful physician, with a world-wide reputation, instead of trusting their cases to some obscure physician. This medicine is known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood. It makes the strong, healthy and vigorous. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the nerves. Taken during the period of prospective maternity, it banishes the usual discomforts and makes baby's coming easy and almost painless. It insures the little new-comer's health and an ample supply of nourishment. Over ninety thousand women have testified to its marvellous merits. Medicine dealers sell it.

It is a druggist's business to give you, not to tell you, what you want.

ron nearly 300 feet below, where the river is pressed into a narrow flume scarcely twenty feet wide. We reach Revelstoke late in the afternoon and pass Kamloops and other points during the night, arriving at North Bend in the morning, where we breakfast at a charming chalet hotel, which makes this a desirable stopping place for tourists to see more of the Fraser canyon than it is possible from the trains. Noon finds us at Mission Junction and within forty miles of Vancouver. Here we take a branch line which crosses the Fraser River and runs to the international boundary where connections are made for Seattle, Tacoma and Portland. On arriving at Seattle we were taken in hand by a committee of the Fraser Club and given a hearty reception. A lengthy programme had been prepared for us, but owing to lack of time it had to be cut short. We were first taken to Queen Ann Hill where we got a splendid view of the busy city. Next to Lake Washington, where we were tendered a lunch and formal reception. In the evening we were extended the courtesies of the Seattle Theatre. The following morning we could go as we pleased to view the city until our departure early in the afternoon. Seattle is not what could be called a beautiful city, but it is a city of business, push and energy, and its fine harbor and railway facilities ensure for it a future.

Tacoma was reached late the same afternoon where we made a stop of a few hours and were delighted with the Sunday quiet and beauty of the city, where all is business from the word go. Tacoma is beautifully situated a few miles from the base of Mount Tacoma—called Mount Rainier in Seattle—a snow-capped monarch over two miles above sea level. Tacoma has a fine harbor, a large shipping trade and splendid resorts, while its fine public buildings and beautiful mansions manifest the enterprise and wealth of its citizens. After being shown the residential portion of the city, we were taken to the city hall, where we were shown through a really admirable museum, which contains genuine Egyptian mummy, besides the many, many other curiosities, not to mention the statues and works of art.

Much as we would like to spend more time at Tacoma, farewell must be said and at midnight our train pulled out for Portland, where we arrived early in the morning and were met at the station by representative men and women who welcomed us to Oregon. Here we spent a wonderful day of sightseeing and continued entertainment. Portland was ours? Only the excursionists know what that means. Of all the receptions tendered us, none was more cordial, more hearty than that of Portland. The party was first escorted to the fine Hotel Portland for breakfast and thence for a drive around the city and to Portland Heights, where exclamations of surprise were heard on all sides at the beautiful panorama all around us. A banquet was given in the Commercial Club at 2 p.m., and a magnificent function it was. The chair was occupied by Mr. Harvey Scott, the veteran editor of the Oregonian, who delivered a stirring address. The afternoon was spent viewing the city and the magnificent public buildings and the day concluding with a splendid reception in the evening in the parlors of the Hotel Portland. Portland is a charming city, with many residents of wealth and leisure, and an ideal city of modern comforts.

This brings us to the western and southern terminus of the trip. Next week we will devote a little space to the homeward march.

The PRESS EXCURSION

Ten o'clock found us beside the Dominion Government's Experimental Farm at Agassiz, where the train halted a few minutes and baskets of flowers were handed round among the ladies of the party, by the farm officials, who were warmly thanked for them.

But we were bound for the land of Uncle Sam, and turning southward at Mission Junction were soon at Huntington, where the Union Jack flew on one side of the street, and the Stars and Stripes on the other. A brief delay here on account of the "tariff wall," that vile contraction of modern civilization, and international comity, and we again went howling along in true Yankee style, towards Seattle, the commercial metropolis of the state of Washington, and one of the most energetic, thriving, and go-ahead cities in the United States.

Preparation had been made for our visit, and soon as we arrived the electric cars were ready for us, and getting in we were run up to the top of Queen Anne's hill, whence an excellent view of the city and district can be obtained. The prospect was very fine. In front was the busy, bustling city. Far in the distance the lofty ranges of the Cascade and Olympic Mountains, and near by the glistening waters of Puget Sound. A banquet given in the evening in Madison Park Pavilion, when brief speeches were made by some of the principal men of the city, and replied to by President Scott, and Mr. T. A. Bell of our own party. An elaborate programme had been arranged, but the train was several hours late, and the reception could not be carried out as intended.

The next day was Sunday, and as it was the only opportunity we had of going to church in the United States, we embraced it, and attended Trinity Methodist church. It is a large and beautiful building, very fine inside. There was a very large congregation. The music and singing were good. The sermon, which by the way was by an Englishman in the absence of the regular pastor, we did not think much of. We thought he "threw on," too much. But the people had not forgotten the Apostolic injunction about entertaining strangers, and treated us very courteously indeed.

We were to leave Seattle by the train for Tacoma that afternoon. Two gentlemen, whose names we cannot place just now, had come up to welcome and escort us down. But here again the train was late, and the elaborate preparations that had been made for our entertainment, had in great measure to be forgone. But we were most courteously received, and every possible attention shown in the all too brief time we were able to stay. Personally our warmest thanks are due to Col. Ferry, secretary of Board of Trade, and the founder of Tacoma, who kindly showed us around the city and gave us much interesting information in regard to it, which we regret the limits of this article do not allow us to mention. We however purpose to do so at another time. But Tacoma is one of the places we would very much like to see again.

We were billed to reach Portland, Oregon, about 8 o'clock next morning, so at 11 p.m. we were once more off and away. About 6 o'clock we were at Kalama where we were to cross the Columbia River, at this point a broad and magnificent stream. Our whole train was run on a steam barge and carried across in boats. Once more on terra firma we were racing off for Portland, through a delightful country. But all luck in being late, instead of being on time was over with us. And so here within a few miles of the city there had been a collision and smashup between two freight trains during the night. This delayed us until the wreck was cleared away, and it was 11.30 instead of 8 a.m. when we arrived at the chief city of Oregon.

Portland is a splendid city. It is a city of roses and flowers, of beautiful lawns and gardens of handsome private residences, and magnificent business and public buildings. The streets are excellently kept and lined with noble trees. The people take great pride in their city, and favorable in regard to it are apparently better appreciated than personal compliments to themselves. The view from Portland heights is very fine. The city lies below, the river stretches far as the eye can reach, a stream of shimmering light, the mountains in the distance, form an imposing background. There is an immense trade carried on, and the Willamette river affords ample shipping facilities for a vast commerce to all quarters of the world. We were most cordially received by the committee of the Portland Press club, the Canadian residents of Portland, and many leading citizens, and after lunch, electric cars were ready to take such of the excursionists as wished to Portland heights, from whence the most beautiful prospect of the whole trip spread itself out before them.

In the afternoon a large party sat down to a sumptuous banquet in the large hall of the Commercial club. The menu was all that could be desired, the music excellent, portraits of Queen Victoria, President McKinley, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier adorned the walls, and everything done to make the guests welcome. After the banquet an exceedingly able and interesting speech was delivered by H. W. Scott, editor of the "Oregonian," which we hope to be able to republish at some future time for the information of our readers. Other speeches were made by the president of the Canadian Press Association, Vice-President Chapman, British Consul Laidlaw and others.

In the evening a grand reception was held in the parlors of the Portland Hotel, at which the wealth, wit, and beauty of the city were present. Space will not permit a description further than that everything was done to make the occasion as pleasant and enjoyable as possible. The train was to leave for Seattle about midnight, and we had to be once more on the move. Quite a number came down to see us off and say good bye. The visit to Portland will not soon be forgotten by those who were there. The people of that city may be republican in their form of government, but they are royal in their courtesy and hospitality.

Next morning found us in Seattle expecting to reach Victoria that afternoon. But by some misfortune the Dominion government steamer, Quanaqua, which was to have taken us up, did not arrive until next morning at 8 o'clock. When it did come we were soon on board, and speeding through the blue waters of Puget Sound. As we crossed the "line" all hands assembled on deck and sang God Save the Queen, and gave three hearty cheers for "the flag that's braved a thousand years."

About 5 p.m. we arrived alongside the dock in Victoria, B.C., and cordial welcome was extended on behalf of the city by Mayor Redfern. Arrangements had been made for us to visit the naval station at Esquimalt, and we were soon in the street cars and bowling along for that noted spot. At the dock, boats from Her Majesty's Cruiser, "Phaeton," were sent for our accommodation, and we were quickly transferred to the big man of war, and shown around by those detailed for the purpose. There were ten large quick firing guns, half a dozen Nordenfolt machine guns firing 100 shots per minute and many other death dealing implements of destruction.

Victoria is a pretty place, just such a place as one would like to live in. The scenery is very fine. Many of the residences are quaint and antique looking, much like in England. The new parliament buildings are among the finest legislative halls on the continent, and contains the best museum we had seen.

Next morning we were again on board the Quanaqua, and off for Vancouver. What a glorious trip through the Straits of Juan and the Gulf of Georgia! It was like a trip through fairyland. We scarcely need to say anything about Vancouver. Perhaps no city in America has had so much said and written about it. And not without reason. It has every advantage to make it one of the great cities of the world in the future. An excellent site. A harbor equal to all demands. The terminus of one of the greatest railroads in the world. Advantages situated for all eastern and great western trade. Rich mines within easy distance. The finest timber we ever saw anywhere. What more could be wanted, but men to utilize all these. And they too are coming fast. Building was going on in all directions, and yet not an empty house to be had.

We were met at the dock by representatives of the city and taken for a drive around Stanley Park. The prospect was simply magnificent; unsurpassed. We need say no more. Upon arriving at Trail, a stop of a few minutes was made, to allow us a short time to see the great Smelting works there. The works are on a grand scale and must have cost a great deal of money. Huge pits in which the ore was being roasted, were sending out clouds of smoke, laden with the smell of coke and sulphur. One of the party remarked that "it smelt like —," an unmentionable place. Then off again for Rossland, part of which we could see away up in the clouds. The grade soon after leaving Trail is one foot in twenty, and the road twists round upon itself so that in places two tracks could be seen below the one on which we were travelling. Six miles as the crow flies requires 12 miles of road, with a rise of about 3500 feet in that distance. It was rather late in the evening when we reached the mountain city. Rossland is a remarkable instance of the rise and growth of mining cities. Four or five years ago a few miner's shacks, today a city of 8,500 inhabitants, good buildings, fine streets, electric lights, and a general air of permanency as well as go-ahead-itativeness. It is a city high up in the world, far above the ordinary tide of humanity. It is progressive and prosperous, and its people good specimens of the free western type. A meeting was arranged for and took place on the depot station platform before the train was to leave, and addresses were delivered by the mayor and ex-Lieut. Governor Mackintosh, of the N. W. T., and suitably replied to by President Scott. Our time at Rossland was all too limited to permit of gaining as much information as we would like to have done, but everything looked prosperous, and progressive, and the people in good spirits—the best test of good times.

Almost Impolite.

"Of course," she exclaimed apologetically. "I meant the greatest object of interest next to yourself."—Washington Star

How They "Work" Us.

"Why is it that a pretty woman is most successful as a lobbyist?"

"Well, because when a pretty woman talks to a man he somehow gets the idea that she wouldn't waste time on him unless he was tolerably good looking himself."

Thoughtful.

B. C. LOAN FLOATED

B. C. CREDIT IS VERY GOOD IN THE LONDON MARKET.

Fourteen Months for Stabbing—Baptist Convention Closed—A Railway Deadlock.

Vancouver, B. C., July 13.—British Columbia has just floated successfully in London a loan of $340,000 ($1,700,000) at a fraction over 96. This is most satisfactory, being more than one per cent higher than the best price obtained for any previous loan. The province's credit is very good. Notwithstanding the taking off of some taxes last year the revenue for the fiscal year was over $1,500,000 or the largest ever known, and nearly double what it was four years ago.

Charles Teague, who grievously stabbed two men at Shoal Bay recently, was given fourteen months yesterday.

The B. C. Baptist convention closed last night after having held its most successful meeting.

It is reported from Nelson that the decision of the railway committee of the privy council to grant the Kootenay Valley road running powers over the Crow's Nest Pass road has not so far affected the local situation. The deadlock still continues. The arrangement it will be remembered was that in consideration of a yearly rent of $175 a mile, the Kootenay Valley road was to have running powers for ten years over eight and one half miles of road, two years' notice being necessary for the termination of the lease. The trouble now is the place the Kootenay Valley road has chosen to join on to the Crow's Nest Pass road after crossing the International boundary line.

BIG BREEZE AT MANITOUL.

Skating and Curling Blanks and Agricultural Hall Completely Destroyed.

Winnipeg, July 13.—Passengers arriving today from Manitou bring news of a big rain and wind storm, which struck that town and surrounding country last night about 10 o'clock. Although no person, so far as known, received any injury, the skating and curling rinks and the agricultural hall were completely destroyed, while Twohey's livery stable and the front of Woolley's general store were blown in. While the fury of the storm seems to have centered particularly in these structures, scarcely a dwelling escaped, pieces of glass in many of them being broken. It has not yet been ascertained what damage was done to the crop, but it is certain they could not have escaped altogether. A slight hail accompanied the rain but it is thought that it was not in sufficient quantity to effect serious injury.

Queensland's Offer Accepted.

London, July 13.—The British government replying to the offer of the government of Queensland to send 250 volunteers and a machine gun to South Africa in the event of war between Great Britain and the Transvaal has expressed the hope that the occasion will not arise, adding that if it does the government will gladly avail itself of this patriotic offer.

$1,000 Fire at Nepawa.

Nepawa, Man., July 13.—Phil Gosling's large livery stable was burned down last night, the horses and summer rigs were saved, but the contents, considerable hay and other contents were destroyed. The total loss is said to be $1,000, with very little insurance. The origin of the fire is a mystery.

The Late Czarewicz Was Married.

London, July 13.—The late czarewicz, according to the Paris correspondent of the Daily News, was privately married with his mother's consent. He left no children.

The remains will be brought here and interred in the cathedral of the fortress. Telegrams of condolence have been received from Queen Victoria, King Humbert and other sovereigns. The late grand duke was an English scholar and an earnest student of naval matters.

HAIL! OH, HAIL!

A Visit to the Office of the Manitoba Farmers' Mutual Hail Insurance Company.

In response to an invitation to drop up some time and look over the affairs of the Manitoba Farmers' Mutual Hail Insurance company, 503 McIntyre block, a Telegram reporter recently visited the offices of the association. He found the management and clerks busily engaged conducting the business and enrolling a large number of applications which they are daily receiving from all parts of the province.

"How is business?" asked the reporter.

"Business is good," they replied; "in fact, we are doing a phenomenal amount of business for a new company. We have issued over two thousand policies, giving our members insurance for two million dollars."

The company has agents in every municipality in the province, and certainly to a large business as they keep three clerks busy recording policies. It is a pleasure to note that there is at least one company in this province which is hustling and being largely patronized by the farmers of this province, as hail insurance should be sought after by every farmer raising a bushel of wheat. The company is under the management of E. A. Taylor, who has had years of experience in the mutual hail insurance business, and there is no reason why this company cannot give the farmers insurance at actual cost. The plan adopted by this company is such that every farmer who insures his crop is certain that he will get his money in case of loss. The company's books are open for inspection to any and all of its members.

Glorious Twelfth.

Toronto, July 13.—The Orange parade took place today. About 2,000 were in line, including a contingent from Hamilton. The usual march through the city from Queen's park to the exhibition grounds took place. There were speeches and games at the park and Rev. Elliott, G. Rowe, Mayor Shaw, Dr. Pyne, M.P.P. and Lieut. Col. Belcher, of Southampton, Ont., were the speakers.

Halifax, July 13.—The Orangemen of Nova Scotia observed the 12th of July by holding a picnic at New Glasgow, the excursionists being carried there on a special train. A large party went from Halifax. There was no special celebration of the day in Halifax.

Newfoundland Budget.

St. John's, Nfld., July 13.—The colonial budget that was laid up on the table of the house of assembly shows a deficit of $83,000 for the last fiscal year. It estimates, however, a surplus of $30,000 for the present year. In view of all the existing conditions the budget is very favorably regarded.

Elaborate preparations are making for the arrival next week of the British squadron under Rear Admiral Bedford. His coming is considered another evidence of Mr. Chamberlain's intention to show the French that they are no longer a power in Newfoundland waters.

The Reward Not Yet Claimed.

Toronto, July 11.—The attorney general's department is awaiting applications for the $1,000 reward for the capture of Pare and Holden. It is expected the contest lies between Chief of Police Duncan, of Campbellton, and St. Onge, caretaker of the Bank of Nova Scotia there. St. Onge had been, it appears, on the lookout for Pare and Holden. When they arrived he notified the police, got their photos and sized the men up, and told the police he was sure they were the robbers. It is stated that St. Onge then arrested Holden, and the two others caught Pare, but after searching them let them go as they had nothing on them. The police thought they had the wrong men. The other thought that they had not made a mistake and re-arrested them on the railway track.

St. Paul, July 14.—In a quarrel over land and boundary lines on a range forty-five miles from Livingston, Mont., W. D. Smith and Robt. Steven prominent stockmen, fought a duel in which Smith was killed. Steven gave himself up.

AN IMPORTANT QUESTION.

Even if It Did Spoil the Story a Little.

"My little girl," began the man with a fondly fatherly manner.

Two men among the listeners got up and went on.

"My little girl," repeated the man as he waited for the others to settle down again, when three arose and went out softly.

Only one man remained by the stove and he had a lame foot.

"My little girl," said the man for the third time in a hurt tone, but with a fine determination, "is so cute and says such unexpected things that we sometimes wonder if it is good for her to be so bright. I don't think we are at all prejudiced because she is our child, but really she is the smartest child for her age I ever saw."

The man with the lame foot nodded, as if the statement were similar to others he had heard.

"Why do you know," continued the man, "that only this morning as she was studying her lessons, which she is slow about learning, as all bright children are, she laid aside her book with an air of having had enough of it, and turning to her mother, she said, 'Say, mamma, why isn't children born educated?' Now what do you think of that? And the man with a lame foot laughed right out and asked how old the child was."

THE MOOSE JAW TIMES.

MOOSE JAW, N.W.T.

Queer Origin of a Hotel.

They say that the best hotel in Texas is to be found at Belton, a town on the Santa Fe road and is kept by "seven sanctified sisters," as the proprietors are popularly called. Several years ago a woman in the place and her husband quarreled over the best way of expounding the Scriptures to a Sunday school class and were so stubborn that they separated and were finally divorced.

This family controversy was taken up by the town, which was soon distinctly divided between the adherents of the husband and the adherents of the wife. The result was a large crop of divorces, and seven husbandless women, including the original cause of the commotion, joined together and rented the town hotel. One of them did the cooking, another was parlor maid, a third made up the beds, and so they divided the work among them and ran the establishment on the co-operative plan.—Chicago Record.

A PILL FOR GENEROUS EATERS.—There are many persons of healthy appetite and poor digestion who, after a hearty meal, are subject to much suffering. The food of which they have partaken lies like lead in their stomachs. Headache, depression, a smothering feeling follow. One so afflicted is unfit for business or work of any kind. In this condition Parment's Vegetable Pills will bring relief. They will assist the assimilation of the aliment, and urea according to direction will restore healthy digestion.

An Inference.—"Such are the delusions to which the human senses and understanding are susceptible," remarked the man who doesn't care whether you comprehend him or not. "That, logically speaking, it is absolutely impossible to be also luteally sure of anything."

"Dear me!" exclaimed Miss Cayenne. "I didn't know you were one."

"What?"

"A weather prophet."—Washington Star

Minard's Liniment Cures Burns, etc.

All Gone but the Outlines.—"How are your plants, Mrs. Mudger?"

"Well, there isn't a single leaf on one of them, but otherwise they are doing first rate."—Chicago News

Exactly.—"What do they mean by 'teaching the young idea how to shoot'?"

"Why, showing them how to have some in life, of course."—Philadelphia Bulletin

A Donkey For His Pains.—Bill—Gill says he's doing the work of a mule.

Jill—Then he must be doing his own work now.—Yonkers Statesman.

SAFE, CERTAIN, PROMPT, ECONOMIC.—These few adjectives apply with peculiar force to Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil—a standard external and internal remedy, adapted to the relief and cure of coughs, sore throat, hoarseness and all affections of the breathing organs, kidney troubles, excoriations, sores, lameness and physical pain.

Does Not Follow.—"It seems to me," observed the cynical partner in the firm, "that a married woman ought to have a great advantage over a single woman as a typewriter."

"Why so?" inquired the girl at the machine.

"Because of her finger ring."

"I don't know"—and she casually turned her solitary diamond around where it could be seen—"I think the single women get the best engagements."—Chicago Tribune.

Minard's Liniment Cures Dandruff.

Saving Him.—"Why have you and Miss Gad-thwaite broken off your engagement?"

"Because she loves me so."

"That's a queer reason."

"Not at all. She believes in fortune telling, and when she went to have her future revealed not long ago she was informed that she would be married three times. That settled my case, for the time being at least. She said she was determined that I should not encounter the danger of being first on the list."—Chicago News.

ULCERKURE Heals All Old or Fresh Wounds.

Not a Theory.—Wig—What do you think of this theory that playing the piano produces nervousness?

Wag—It's no theory. The girl next door to us affects the nerves of the entire neighborhood with her playing.—Philadelphia Record

There never was, and never will be, a universal panacea. In one remedy for all ills to which flesh is heir—the very nature or many curatives being such that were the germs of other and differently seated diseases rooted in the relief of the patient—what would relieve one ill in turn would aggravate the other. We have, however, in Quinine Wine, when obtained in a sound, undiluted state, a remedy for many and grievous ills. By its gradual and judicious use the feeblest systems are led into convalescence and strength by the influence which Quinine exerts on Nature's own restorative. It relieves the drooping spirits of those with whom a chronic state of morbid despondency and lack of interest in life is a disease, and, by tranquillizing the nerves, disposes to sound and refreshing sleep—imparts vigor to the action of the blood, which, being stimulated, courses through the veins, strengthening the healthy animal functions of the system, thereby making activity a necessary result, strengthening the frame, and giving life to the digestive organs, which naturally demand increased substance—result, improved appetite. Northrop and Lyman, of Toronto, have given to the public their superior Quinine Wine at the usual rate, and, gauged by the opinion of scientists, this wine approaches nearest perfection of any in the market. All druggists sell it.

Don't Neglect a Cold in the Head.

JAPANESE CATARRH CURE Cures in a Single Night.

Catarrh of the head usually starts with a cold in the head, and if left unchecked in this climate rarely gets well itself. Another cold is usually added, and before it gets well incipient catarrh sets in, and as each fresh cold is contracted the disease gradually becomes worse, until hearing, sense of taste and smell are gone, and finally incurable lung trouble is the result. If you have a cold in the head don't neglect it. Japanese Catarrh Cure relieves cold in the head in a few minutes, and will cure in a single night. Mr. Alex. McRae, the well-known tailor of New Westminster, B.C., writes: "I was for some weeks suffering from a cold in the head, which was apparently developing into catarrh. I purchased a box of Japanese Catarrh Cure, and in less than two days the trouble entirely disappeared. I can highly recommend it; the first application relieved."

Sold by all druggists. Price 50 cents. Six boxes, guaranteed to cure, for $2.50. A free sample sent to any sufferer from catarrh. Enclose 5 cents in stamps. Address, The Griffiths & Macpherson Co., Ltd. Church Street, Toronto.

TIME TO SPEAK.

Silence Was No Longer a Virtue in the Case of This Boy.

There is a time to keep silence, but it was evidently not the right time in the case of a boy who lives in a country town. He got a splinter in his foot, and, in spite of his protestations, his mother and grandmother decided to place a poultice over the wound. The boy resisted vigorously.

"I won't have any poultice," he declared stoutly.

As the hot poultice touched the boy's foot he opened his mouth.

"You—" he began.

"Keep still," said his mother, shaking her stick, while the grandmother applied the poultice. Once more the little fellow opened his mouth.

"I—"

But the uplifted switch awed him into silence. In a minute more the poultice was firmly in place, and the boy was tucked up in bed.

"There, now," said his mother. "The splinter will be drawn out, and Eddie's foot will soon be well."

As the mother and grandmother moved away triumphantly a shrill, small voice came from under the bedclothes. "You've got it on the wrong foot!"—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

A Wonderful Age.

Mr. Broadbrim—This is a wonderful age, a wonderful age.

Mr. Gotham—Indeed it is. Africa is being opened to commerce and civilization. France, England and Germany are slicing up China, the arctic regions being fully explored, the southern states are becoming great manufacturing centers, and New York is to have rapid transit.—New York Weekly.

Heredity.

"I see," remarked the Samoan, "that we are described as a dark complexioned race in the geography."

"Certainly."

"Well, it may not be always so. If this uncertainty continues and we keep on trying to turn pale, I shouldn't be surprised if we were all blonde in a generation or two."—Washington Star

How to act upon the square."

Pleasant For Him.

Scrimble—So sorry I've none of my work to show you. Fact is, I've just sent all my pictures to the academy.

Mrs. Macmillions—What a pity! I did so much want to see them. How soon do you expect them back?—Punch.

Logical Treatment.

Mrs. Mild—You seem to differ from the usual idea about codding a man to win his consent. According to your theory, scolding is the best medium for winning satisfactory results.

Mrs. Wild—That, my dear, is in accord with one of the laws of nature. Everything has to be blown up before it will "come down."—Richmond Dispatch.

Unpleasant For the Canon.

"Did that young canon call to see you again last evening?"

"Canon! He is a 13 inch gun!"

"Why so?"

"Such a bore!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Equipment.

Nodd—I wouldn't be surprised if my boy turned out to be a playwright.

Todd—What makes you think so?

Nodd—He's such a good French scholar.—Nuggets.

Providing Facilities.

"What are you doing there?" inquired the Tagal rustic who had wandered out of the jungle. "What's the use of putting up a wood shed and a doghouse in this out of the way place?"

"Don't bother us," answered the warrior. "We're advance guard to Aguinaldo. He'll be along this way day after tomorrow, and he may feel like burning a town."—Washington Star.

Another Resemblance.

"You disgusting creature!" exclaimed the pink and white young woman who met him at the door. "You are as repulsive as—as a cabbage worm!"

"Yes'm," replied Tufford Knott, who was on his journey westward. "An I'm a good deal like a cabbage worm, b'ides. I'm eatin' my way into the interior, ma'am."—Chicago Tribune.

Measuring.

The katydid laughed raucously, the caterpillar more quietly.

"How that girl did shriek when she found you on her shoe!" exclaimed the katydid.

"Yes; I guess she thought I was a measuring worm," replied the caterpillar, holding his sides in his merriment.

Puzzled Even Her.

"How can you scold all the time?" was asked of the woman with five step-children and an indolent husband.

"I can't just explain it, but I know that I'm blessed with wonderful powers of endurance."

Minard's Liniment Relieves Neuralgia.

Classified.

"Put it among the current events," snapped the editor. —Philadelphia North American.

Headaches Relieved in One Minute.

She Wanted to Know.

He had done his best to explain to her all about the Alpha difficulties.

"So, you see," he concluded, "it's the old story of too many cooks. That's the history of the whole Samoan trouble."

"Yes, Charley, dear, it's all as clear as day, except one thing. Who is this Sam Owen?"—Washington Star.

Household Expenses.

"And to think of his wanting to limit me to $30 a week for household expenses!" said she to her lawyer. "Why, that would hardly pay for my theater parties."

The great lung healer is found in that excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

Isn't a Snowstorm Weather?

"Isn't this the most delightful weather you ever saw?" exclaimed the exuberant young man.

She turned upon him with that icy manner, which only a girl can command, and answered: "I never saw any weather. My impression has always been that weather is invisible."—Washington Star.

Women Need Not Suffer

From those terrible side aches, back aches, headaches and the thousand and one other ills which make life full of misery.

Most of these troubles are due to impure, imperfectly filtered blood—the kidneys are not acting right and in consequence the system is being poisoned with impurities.

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

are daily proving themselves woman's greatest friend and benefactor.

Here is an instance:

Mrs. Harry Fleming, St. Mary's, N.B., says: "The use of Doan's Kidney Pills restored me to complete health. The first symptoms I noticed in my case were severe pains in the small of my back and around the joints, together with general weakness and loss of appetite. I gradually became worse, until, hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I got a box from our druggist.

I am pleased to testify to their effectiveness in correcting the troubles from which I suffered."

Permanent Cure of Salt Rheum.

The permanent cure after permanent cure that is being published week by week has placed Burdock Blood Bitters far above all other remedies in the estimation of the sick and suffering.

Even the severest and most chronic diseases that other remedies fail to relieve yield to the blood purifying, blood enriching properties of B.B.B.

Salt Rheum or Eczema—that most stubborn of skin diseases, which causes such torture and is so difficult to cure with ordinary remedies—cannot withstand B.B.B.'s healing, soothing power.

The case of Mrs. Jas. Sanderson, Emerson, Man., shows how effective B.B.B. is in curing Salt Rheum at its worst, and curing it to stay cured.

This is what she wrote:

"Burdock Blood Bitters cured me of a bad attack of Salt Rheum three years ago. It was so severe that my finger nails came off. I can truly say that I know of no more valuable medicine in the world than B.B.B. It cured me completely and permanently, as I have never had a touch of Salt Rheum since."

Glad to Meet Him.

"I confess this Philippine problem puzzles me," remarked the man with the high forehead. "I don't know what I should do if I were in President McKinley's place."

The man with the short neck jumped up and grasped him by the hand.

"I am delighted to meet you, sir," he said. "You are the first and only man I have seen yet who couldn't take right hold of this Philippine business and knock the daylight out of it!"—Chicago Tribune.

"What do you mean?" demanded Flash.

"Oh, there are other rakes!"—Philadelphia North American.

Advertising is Everything.

"Advertising is a great thing."

"Any special proof?"

"Yes, the Widow Dabney advertised her horse for sale, and the widower who came to look at it fell in love with her."

ULCERKURE—Sure Cure for Poison Oak or Ivy.

A Friendly Offer.

Traveler (to highwayman)—I'm very sorry that I haven't any money with me, but I'll tell you what I'll do—I'll recommend all my friends who have money or other valuables, when they want to take a walk to come this way!

—Fliegende Blätter

GOOD DIGESTION SHOULD WAIT ON APPETITE.—To have the stomach well is to have the nervous system well. Very delicate are the digestive organs. In some so sensitive are they that atmospheric changes affect them. When they become disarranged no better regulator is procurable than Parment's Vegetable Pills. They will assist the digestion so that the hearty eater will suffer no inconvenience and will derive all the benefits of his food.

Superstition never keeps people from accepting 13 for a dozen.

A man with an elastic imagination is apt to mistake it for his conscience.

A man who lives on hope will spend his old age as somebody else's expense.

You can nearly always judge a man's character by what he thinks laughable.

Owing to the burning out of the bridge over Cherry Creek in British Columbia last Saturday night, the Imperial Limited, which should have arrived here Monday morning was eighteen hours late, and Tuesday's train was also late.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Allison sold out their furniture and household effects by public auction on Wednesday, and have left for Vancouver where Mr. Allison will devote his attention to fruit raising, having purchased a fruit farm some time ago.

Manager Whyte, accompanied by L. A. Hamilton, Land Commissioner, and C. C. Chipman, Commissioner of the Hudson's Bay Co., passed through this week en route to British Columbia through which they will make a tour lasting some weeks.

A slight alteration has been made in the divisions of Road Masters R. H. Lowe and Mr. Lillis. Forty miles of track line has been taken off the east end of Mr. Lowe's division and added to that of Mr. Lillis. Mr. Lillis now runs from Moose Jaw to Brandon and Mr. Lowe from Moose Jaw to Swift Current.

Last Saturday a sample of brome grass grown on the farm of Mr. J. G. Beesley, of Marlborough district, was left at this office. It measured six feet two inches and was all headed out. Mr. Beesley has five acres of it, of which he expects to cut twenty-five tons. We sent the sample to the C.P.R. hotel, where it has been greatly admired by passengers going through.

Mr. George Barber returned last week from an extended trip through the Maple Creek and Red Deer districts, which he took for the purpose of spying out the land. He returns well pleased with what he saw, and the prospects are that Mr. Barber will locate near Lacombe, on the Edmonton branch, next spring. Until that time he will live on the farm of Jas. McClelland, about three miles from town, which he has rented.

Mr. A. T. Connell, B.A., formerly general agent but now Inspector of the North American Life, was in town last Friday and Saturday in the interests of his company. Mr. Connell spent last winter in the University at Toronto, with the result that he is now a B.A.

Two special trains of sleeping coaches passed through Moose Jaw yesterday carrying nearly four hundred members of the National Editorial Association of the United States en route home from the annual meeting at Portland. They speak highly of the receptions given them at the coast cities and Calgary and the trip through the Rockies was a revelation to them. Several had passed through the mountains by American routes but the scenery they saw is not to be compared with that along the C.P.R. They were met at North Bend by President Walter Scott, who welcomed them to Canada on behalf of the Western Canada Press Association.

Mr. Willing, Territorial Weed Inspector, went through certain parts of this district last week in company with the local inspector, Mr. Robt. Green. There are a couple of townships where the weeds have gained considerable headway and if strenuous efforts are not put forth to eradicate them a couple of years will see serious results. Mr. Willing says that some of our farmers are not as much alive to the matter as they should be. In one case he found a farmer summer-fallowing; but in Mr. Willing's opinion he was "seeding." Or in other words he was plowing down weeds that had already matured only to reap a harvest in future years, when the weeds came sufficiently near the surface to grow. This year the farmers have a good excuse for being late with their summer-fallowing; but nevertheless plowing down pastured weeds does not pay.

They enjoyed their outing very much.

General Superintendent Osborne of the C.P.R. was waited on by all the Superintendents of his division, in Winnipeg, on Monday, when matters were discussed in connection with the train men's meeting held that afternoon. A large number of train men attended the meeting. Certain questions which have been agitating the men for some time were brought up and plans were discussed for a train men's outing at Fort Frances.

The Hon. W. B. Ives died at Ottawa on Saturday last as the result of a stroke of paralysis received on the Imperial Limited three days previous while returning from a business trip to the Kootenay. Deceased was fifty-eight years old and was a successful commercial man. He had been a member of the House of Commons since 1878. He was called to the Privy Council by Sir John Thompson in 1892 and was Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Bowell administration, resigning in July, 1898.
